AIDS Education - First Certificate Program on Lima Campus

The Ohio State University at Lima will offer a new certificate program in AIDS education. The three quarter program will be available for credit and noncredit beginning this spring.

The program is intended to provide individuals with the necessary skills to improve AIDS education, awareness, and intervention. It is designed for social workers, teachers, pastors, care givers, allied health professionals, and counselors. A similar course offered on the Columbus campus has had very high enrollments.

Several local agencies have endorsed the program, including the AIDS Task Force Regional Cooperative, Allen County Health Department, and Lima Area Health Education Center (LAHEC).

The program begins this spring with a course entitled AIDS: Facts and Issues. This is a prerequisite course for the other two classes in the series and covers the medical, legal, and psycho-social aspects of HIV infection and AIDS. The second class, offered this summer, will be AIDS: Psycho-Social Aspects. This course will assist students in providing culturally sensitive services to persons with AIDS or ARC or who have tested HIV positive. The certificate will be completed this fall following the third course AIDS: The Community Response. Students in this course will complete assignments designed to provide opportunities to observe and participate in the design and delivery of services to persons with AIDS or who are HIV infected.

Children's theatre on campus

Thirty-nine budding young actors, aged 9-12, from several area schools will perform in three original productions on the Lima Campus stage, Friday, March 18 at 5:30 and 7:30 p.m. and Saturday, March 19 at 2 p.m. They have all spent the last 10 weeks participating in the first Ohio State Lima Children's Theatre Workshop presented by the theatre department under the direction of Dr. Maria Ignatieva, visiting theatre faculty member from Moscow.

The three plays will last 30-45 minutes and involve completely original work developed by the students themselves. The performances are entitled:

"We're Making a Movie"

Friday, 3/18, 5:30 p.m.

"A Holiday of Misbehavior"

Friday, 3/18, 7:30 p.m.

"Miracles in Central Park"

Saturday, 3/19, 2:00 p.m.

All performances are free and open to the public.

Phone frenzy

We appear to be experiencing technical difficulties with the phone system. By all accounts, it is not the fault of the new automated attendant and voice mail system. But rather it's an outdated telephone switchboard that is struggling under the strain of this new application. Dean Meek and several others, including the telephone company are working to resolve the problem. On a user-friendly note, when recording your voice-mail greeting, please give your callers two options for getting out of your message system. Example: "You may press #xxx to reach my assistant/faculty services or dial zero for the campus operator."

If you have any particular comments or suggestions about the phones, please refer them to Howard Reed at ext. 389. Meanwhile, your cooperation and understanding is greatly appreciated.

OSU-Lima faculty take top two research awards

$90,000 in regional campus seed grant research awards were issued recently and Ohio State Lima faculty members were in the number one and number two positions. Dr. Robert Stamps, assistant professor of physics was awarded $15,000 for a study in the area of condensed matter. His subject is a theoretical investigation of properties of magnetic multilayers constructed from rare earth and antiferromagnetic films. Dr. Laura Brannon, assistant professor of psychology received $14,500. Her research will address what happens in the mind of a person who receives a request to do something that the person had not been planning to do. She will bring contemporary theories and applications in psychology to bear on the determinants of effective social influence.

Behind closed office doors Q. Dookie (Associate Professor of Agronomy) listens to his third version of a personal greeting for the campus voice mail. "Hi!" he hears himself say. "This is Quentin Dookie. I'm probably out in the campus barn dealing with a new shipment of silage — or whatever! Leave a message and as soon as I've been hosed down, I'll call you back!" Could this be the one?

Famous OSU-Lima Alums. Who, where are they?

Ohio State Lima will celebrate its 35th anniversary in 1995. In preparation for this auspicious occasion, the Office of Alumni Affairs is looking to compile a dossier of famous Ohio State alums who attended or began their education on the Lima campus.

It appears that our records are limited to those who graduated from our four year education program. And so, we are asking current and retired faculty and staff to help us compile this list.

Please scan your records and dig deep into your memory banks. If you come up with some names, please pass them along to Carla Churchill in Galvin Hall, Room 222, ext. 390. Thank you.

Dr. Fasig recognized for her work on race relations

Dr. Carol S. Fasig, director of continuing education at Ohio State Lima received two prestigious awards recently for her work on the "Can't We All Get Along" program on race relations organized by The City of Lima.

The first award was the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Drum Major Award presented by the Diocese of Toledo, Office of Black Catholic Ministries. The award is dated January 15, 1994 and is inscribed with Dr. King's testimony: "Say I was a drum major for justice, I was a drum major for peace, I was I was a drum major for righteousness, say that I left a committed life behind..."

The second award was presented by the Social Confab, a multi-cultural organization in Lima striving for a better community. The occasion was Excellebration 1994, an annual black history month celebration held February 27 at the Civic Center downtown. The award reads "Celebrating Excellence in Outstanding Personal Community Contributions."

Korean Art Exhibits

Dr. Sun-Young Lee, lecturer in art education at Ohio State Lima is contributing artist and joint organizer of the Korean Art Exhibits on display now through April 17 at ArtSpace/Lima. The Korean community gathered at ArtSpace this past weekend to mark the opening of the exhibit with a spectacular celebration of Korean music, dance and native cuisine.

OSU/LTC co-sponsor Bank One Annual Economic Forum, March 30

Each year Bank One Lima brings a speaker of national repute to the community for its annual economic forum. For the first time, Bank One offered to bring this community-wide event to campus and invited Ohio State Lima and Lima Tech to co-sponsor.

The forum is scheduled for 3:45 p.m., Weds., March 30 in Reed Hall Auditorium, followed by an elegant reception in the Reed Hall Dining Room. Three to four hundred people are expected to hear Dr. Gene Stanaland, the self-proclaimed "Will Rogers of Economics."

This national expert has the ability to make a complex subject such as economics understandable and entertaining. For 20 years he was a member of the Economics Department at Auburn University in Alabama. Now as the president of GSE, Inc., an economics and management firm, his clients read like a "Who's Who" in business. Tele-dyne; General Electric; Burlington Industries; Georgia Pacific; DuPont. Kraft; Dow Chemical.

This is a rare opportunity to hear an expert of this calibre on the Lima campus. Be sure to encourage your students to attend this "don't miss" event. You will receive your personal invitation through the mail. We are looking forward to a strong turnout from the campus.

Youth Arts Festival, March 24

The annual Allen County Youth Arts Festival will take place on the Lima campus, Thursday, March 24. The day-long event features exhibits, rehearsals and performances in the visual, instrumental, and vocal arts. Participants are drawn from Allen County high schools.

An exhibition of artwork will be on display in Reed Hall, Room 160. Vocal and instrumental talent will be featured at a public concert at 7 p.m. in Reed Hall Auditorium. Dr. Richard Mallonee, assistant professor of music at Ohio State Lima will be guest conductor.

Mr. Harry Shutt of Kewpee's Restaurants will present three $300 book scholarships to the most outstanding student in each of the three disciplines, visual, instrumental and vocal arts.

Campus Responds to AIDS Testing

More than one hundred students, faculty and staff took advantage of the free, confidential AIDS testing held recently on campus by the Allen County Health Department.

Department officials were extremely pleased with the turnout and say they expect an even greater number to participate next year. They attribute the increase in people willing to come forward to a growing awareness and understanding of the disease and to a lessening of the taboos associated with AIDS. This year they noted more groups of friends and colleagues coming in for testing together. Several people seemed to be more comfortable with the personal and morale support that this arrangement offered.

It is estimated that the number of diagnosed cases of AIDS in the United States will double in the next year. Annual testing is recommended for those exhibiting one or more risk factors.

Our thanks to Student Senate and related committees for their strong campus leadership on this issue.

Spring Awards Banquet

 Call for Nominations
OSU & LTC go it alone this year

Requests for nominations for the OSU-Lima Excellence in Support Services Award will go out at the end of the month. Please take a moment to nominate one of the many fine support people on campus who have helped you or whose work has come to your attention in the last year. (Student Senate is already canvassing the student body for nominations for the Faculty Distinguished Teaching Award.)

Both awards will be presented at the Annual Faculty/Staff Awards Banquet held Spring Quarter. Traditionally, this event has been hosted jointly with Lima Technical College. This year, for the first time, each school will hold its own awards banquet. Lima Tech will have theirs on April 29 and Ohio State will celebrate May 20.

Ohio State Lima is planning an evening of recognition and dinner theatre, when we will welcome back Martha Farmer, retired member of theatre faculty, as guest director in the Lima Campus Theatre spring production of Lillian Hellman's, Another Part of the Forest.

This year, let's make it an Ohio State Lima celebration to remember!
